

MASPIans excelling in academic community:

100% of 2017 & 2018 graduates participated in High Impact Practices (HIPs) such as research, internships, and study abroad

96% of 2017 & 2018 graduates participated in community groups outside of MASP; 72% of whom were in leadership roles

MASP

Miramontes Arts and Sciences Program

MASP offers connection to CAPS and HIPs, which help students transform their learning to a more involved process. MASP also offers community events that include, but aren't limited to: studying techniques, meeting professors for research opportunities, drop-in hours for tutors for

The MASP community is one of the highlights of the program. The community events include mental and physical wellness events, Campus professor events to explore new majors and fields of interest, and also

The MASP Program also offers a bridge program for highschool students, called the Program for Excellence in Academics and Community (PEAC). This allows students from high schools to learn how to live in a University setting. This makes the transition between the two schools much more smooth, and helps improve college retention rates. It also helps select future students for MASP, since people that complete the program become members if they so choose. PEAC is intentionally rigorous, to give incoming freshmen a headstart to college life, both academically via classes assigned during the program, but also in community via group events to build community.

MASP spends the most of its budget into funding students, via programs like PEAC and the scholarships offered.

MASP is capable of increasing yearly retention rates for students via its programs and offered assets, when compared to the campus average.

